ASSEMBLY FACES EXTRA SESSION

Freely Predicted That Legislature Will Sit for Ninety Days.

SPEAKERSHIP FIGHT

Organization of House to Precipitate Struggle That Will Delay Action.

Belief in the prediction that the General Assembly of 1914 will remain in session placty days instead of sixty is constantly strengthening around the Capitol and the hotel lobbies where the visiting political solons gather. Under orginary circumstances, an exthe orginary circumstances, an ex-tra session would be considered prob-able with an enabling act, woman suf-frage, tax reform and coeducation all on the calendar for settlement this winter, but this consideration is strengthened by the fact that the House of Delegates, which will con-tain sixty-old they recommended. tain sixty-odd new representatives, will have to be reorganized from the speaker's chair to the doors.
"The fight over the speakersigp and important committee assignments in the House will stretch out over the lirst two weeks of the session," declared a prominent State official yes-terday. "In the last two Legislatures Byrd had no opposition for the speakership, and he was able to ar-range his committee appointments before the meeting of the Assembly, in that way greatly simplifying the proof organizing the lower House "It will be very different this win-ter, however, with seven or eight avowed candidates in the field for Byrd's gavel. With the best of luck the new Speaker cannot be chosen until the third or fourth day, and in the case of a real fight, the election will probably drag through the first week or ten days of the session. Naturally, it will be impossible for the successful candidate for the speakership to announce his committee assignments until several days after his election, as he must consult with the House lead-ers on the more important post? The organization of committees, always tedius, will thus be still further reall those familiar with legislative history in Virginia."

tory in Virginia."

Hot Fight Opens.

The fight for the speakershin is daily gathering importance, and will overshadow all other issues by the time the legislators gather in Richmond in January. It would take a Philadelphia lawyer to pick the winner in the rich field of entrants for Evrol's chair, but colling to the states do. Byrd's chair, but political sharps do not hesitate to place the odds on Cox, of Richmond; Hugh White, of Rockbridge, and Judge Martin Williams, of Giles, if the latter decides to re-enter race which he quit during his ner's campaign against John Garhand Pollard. The other declared candidates, J. N. Stubbs. of Glouvester, Walter T. Oliver, of Fairfax; Harry R. Houston, of Hampton, and C. J. Meetz, of Prince William, are conceded to be strong in certain sections, but lacking in the general following possessed by the cret three. sessed by the first three. sessed by the first three.

There is some doubt about Martin Williams's position. The Democratic floor leader refused to publicly express himself on his recent visit to Richmond, and, although he announced in July that he would not be a candidate for the speakership, there are those who say he will be proposed by his friends and his candidacy urged. CHARLES M. CAUGHY DIES IN RICHMOND

Veteran of Consular Service and Former Journalist Ends Long Career.

MARRIED RICHMOND WOMAN

Broke Hip While Visiting Relatives Here and Never Left His Bed.

Charles M. Caughy of Baltimore and Richmond, journalist, veteran of the United States Consular Service, and a distinguished scholar, died yesterday morning at 219 Gevernor Street, following a long illness of complicated organic troubles. One week after Mr. Caughy arrived in Richmond with his wife and daughter, in January, having just resigned his post as consul at Milan, Italy, he fell and broke his hip. Although he recovered entirely from this misfortune, he suffered a re-currance of his chronic organic trouble before leaving his bed after his acci-

Auto Touring Tends to Boost Business of Privately Owned Highways.

The cavalry manoeuvres of the United States Army, now being held near Winchester, Va., had the effect of boosting the July receipts of the Valley Turnpike Company to a new record mark, according to the monthly statement of receipts just furnished the State Corporation Commission, by this highway concern. Aside from the honor of entertaining the visiting regiments, the county is financially a ma-terial gamer. To the Valley Turnpike Company alone the visiting cavalrymen sang to the tune of $52071, a sum sufficiently large to call for an explanatory letter from the onicers of the company with the monthly state-

In times of war, Uncle Sam's soldier boys have the right of march-ing pretty much where they please, using any road or thoroughfure in sight and asking permission afterward. When the dogs of war are chained, the situation is materially different, and the Federal regulars as well as the State militiamen must look hefore they march, and see whether their presence is desired. In times of peace the Prederal government is required to pay the customary tol's for its soldiers when using privately controlled roads for parade grounds. The Valley Turnpike, leading from Staunton to Winchester, is the principal thoroughfare used by the four cavalry regiments which are near Winchester for manoeuzes.

or manoeuzzes. for manoeuvres.

Other directionstances contributed to make July the most prosperous month in the history of the Valley Turnpike Company. According to the officers, the growing use of automobiles for summer tourns has meant a noticeable increase in the revenue of the toll roads. So that, while motor driven machines are wearing on fine roads. machines are wearing on fine roads, they make recomperse in the amount of tolt they pay.
